young hoodlums yelled "scab," but it was not the day before, when the whole street echoed and rocked in a pandemonium of that one repeated cry.

A remarkable thing finally happened. A dead silence fell upon the crowd. Running at top speed to keep up with the cars, two or three thousand men and boys panted and puffed and jostled along without a word or cry. They gradually dropped away and the cars went on alone into Sacramento street. Dinan's men only allowed them to go on a little way, refusing to continue the course into Hays street, where the worst riots occurred yesterday. As they were returning, three or four young girls came out from a florist's shop with bouquets of red carnations, handing them up to the motormen.

In her zeal, one of the girls hugged one of the strike-breakers.

Cornelius and the labor-union papers always refer to these strike-breakers as "thugs and blacklegs." The thug and blackleg on the first car took the carnations with the grace of a prima donna; swung out on the step, and took off his hat in a deep bow; tossed a blossom to each of the mounted policemen guarding the cars and one to Thornwall Mullally. Then the car moved on again.

Capt. Gleason of the police looked with dismay at Dinan's trooper cops with scab flowers on. Gleason is as keen as Dinan is stupid. "See that your officers do not wear flowers," he said loudly to one of the sergeants. "They have done nothing to wear bouquets for," which neatly avoided placing the police in an embarrassing position.

On the return trip, a young man came to the front door and squealed "Scab, scab." His aged mother had evidently been reading about the heads the police cracked yesterday. With a shriek she grabbed him around the middle and tried to drag him back into the house. He was hanging onto the door casings yelling "scab" and she was still pulling him back when the cars went past.

Rocks were put on the track, and several wagons loaded with lumber and coal tried to block the way, but were driven off.

THE BULLET HOLE.

When the cars got back to the barn, however, a little clean-cut bullet hole was found through the glass of the transom. The men on the car said they heard a shot which seemed to come from an open window on Devisadero street, near McAllister.

It will be interesting to see what Dinan will do tomorrow. He can't keep up this farce much longer, and a terrible riot will surely follow his first attempt to escort the cars down into the Market-street district.

A San Francisco mob is one of the most dangerous in the world to fight. The rioters of Tuesday and Wednesday were not cheap dagos and Greeks who run at the sound of a gun. Most of them are Irish-Americans of the peculiar South-of-Market-street type, used to fighting and without fear. Tuesday they walked straight into pistol fire and shot back.

The only hope the unions seem to have is of bluffing Calhoun and the iron founders and the telephone company into some sort of a compromise before more fighting brings the troops in.

Mayor Schmitz's Peace Committee met yesterday with this end in view—of getting a compromise. Joke—Pinhead McCarthy was the leading spirit. He nominated Mayor Schmitz for chairman in spite of the open protests of some of the other labor leaders. Gene accepted the job and appointed numerous prominent citizens to his committee—to their own vast astonishment and anger when most of them heard about it.

GENE IS SNUBBED.

Gene offered today to be the bright angel of peace to the telephone strike, and was snubbed by the Pacific States Telephone Company, which already has the strike practically won. President Scott of the company notified the Mayor that the directors have resolved to have no dealings whatever with the union. The striking unions, thoroughly disheartened, are frantically endeavoring to compel or persuade other unions to join them, particularly the teamsters, who are recognized as the star rough-house rioters of the city. Mike Casey, head of that union, is said to have absolutely refused to join the strike, and even to have threatened to beat up any teamster who refuses to drive to a telephone exchange. Mike sees the signs of the times and feels the overwhelming tide of popular sympathy against the strikes.

Patrick Calhoun stated today that he has received many letters from business men of San Francisco offering their services free of charge to run his cars until the United Railroads can get men.

Yesterday a mob of ruffians called at the home of one of the girl telephone operators who has remained loyal. They broke the windows, hurled eggs onto the carpet, and ruined the furniture. Today the scared union sent around to the house offering to pay for all the damage.

THIS IS WAR.

As prophesied in The Times a week ago, building is stopped on all sides. One of the bus drivers told me today that he is a teamster thrown out of a job by the stopping of the building. He says the town is filled with men without jobs. It is not that the business men have found any new courage; their resolve to crush the unions comes from desperation. They can't get money to go on with the work. Money that came flooding after the fire from insurance companies has been used up and eastern men won't send money into a city where the business is ruled by labor unions as by a terrible czar. There will probably be more bloodshed and violence and murder. But in the end I believe the employers of San Francisco will become free men once more.

Although Dinan has to club strikers in the streets, the police court records of San Francisco this morning were records of shame on his account. John Miller, a striker, who threw a carpenter's hatchet at a passing car yesterday, was arrested and the attorneys of the company found that Dinan had released him on $10 bail. That hatchet is now in Thornwall Mullaly's office. It is a horrible weapon of destruction. When protest was made, the police scanned out, arrested Miller again, and he is now in jail. He says he is not a carpenter, but rushed into this building and grabbed up a hatchet to throw. When an explanation was demanded of Dinan, as to his releasing a union picket who threw a rock yesterday, he said weakly that he thought it was only a little boy with an orange.

John Doyle, the telephone lineman, the breaking of whose head by the policeman acted as a warning to the crowd today, is a very subdued man. He left the hospital with such a headache! He shook hands with the cop who broke a billy over his head and said he had gone out looking for trouble and got all that was coming to him. The officers who captured a bartender flourishing the pistol yesterday stated to me positively that the man was not arrested. Today, however, he was found to be in custody. Jerry must have sent around after him. His bail was fixed at $50. He will be arraigned in court this evening, saying that he is ready to run as many cars as the Chief of Police is willing to protect, and to run them wherever the police can take care of them.

Real Battle Is Expected When Cars Invade Lower Portions of City. Police Deprise Non-unionists of Beds and Food.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—Roses and carnations instead of brick bats and cobblestones featured today's run of two cars of the United Railroads, manned by twenty strike-breakers, from the car barn at Oak and Broderick streets for a distance of one or four miles through the business and residence streets of the Western Addition. Stirred to admiration by the courage of the unarmed strike-breakers in operating the two cars in the mob-crowded thoroughfares, women all along the route stood on door steps or leaned out windows and, with their handkerchiefs clasped, their hands cheered or threw kisses to the non-unionists as the police protected cars ran slowly by. On the return trip, on Sacramento street, near Presidio avenue, a young woman, in a florist's shop, tossed a handful of bright red, long-stemmed carnations to the platform of one of the cars.

Later, the rapid and skillful service of the men leaned far out and caught the posies. The cars were halted then, while young women brought bunches of carnations and roses from the shop and offered them to the men. Soon every strike-breaker had a flower in his coat. The extra time caused by the visitation to the cars was offset by the arrival of the officials of the company, who were hurrying to the cars with the cars.

From a bakery shop in the neighborhood a stout woman came hurrying breathlessly, her hands full of small cakes, but from the oven. They were devoured in twinkling by the uniformed recipients, and she ran back to her shop and brought more.

But the afternoon's trip was not all fun and games. The strike-breakers, howling crowds of more than a thousand strikers and strike sympathizers jog-trotted for blocks along the sidewalks, routing the cameras and frenzied threats to "kill them yet," crying "murderers," "cowards" and "scabs."

Now and again an unseen arm was drawn back in the outside air, and the strike-breakers hurtling through the air to crash against a man. At such times a mounted policeman would whirl his horse about and dash into the sidewalk in the direction from which the attack came; but the guilty man or boy—hidden in the recesses of the strike delegation—had already once. A brick, hurled from a sidewalk, cleared the top of a car and struck a union man in the chest.

Though the shooting was witnessed by the police, company officials or the newspaper men who accompanied the cars on their run, one of the motor-men declared after the return to the car barn that he had seen a man shoot a sidewalk at Devisadero street, between Golden Gate avenue and McAllister. In proof of this statement he pointed to a clean cut hole in the front wheel of a wheelbarrow in the yard where he parked his car.

The start was made from Oak and Broderick streets shortly before 2 o'clock, after the police had taken station on the road ahead of the cars, to insure that a union sympathizer was about to dump on the tracks in front of the car house.

After the run had been completed, one of the employees of the United Railroads, in a report to the company, stated that in performing his secret-service work during the afternoon, he observed a number of strikers with carpenters at work on a scaffolding at the southeast corner of Devisadero and McAllister streets, and that at the time of the passing of the cars each of these workmen was armed with a pistol.

The programme for tomorrow is to run two cars through the more populous sections of the city than the Western Addition. In this event more serious trouble is anticipated. President Calhoun stated today that he has the names of 1,000 men who are non-union citizens, claiming to have been eyewitnesses that the first shots fired in Tuesday's tragic battle were not from the strikers, but from the cars.

methods to conform with the require-

It always been a rule of the company that it set the price of needed to sell at that price. This gave almost absolute control of the

Under the present method, the Pa-

SEATTLE, May 9.—(Exclusive Dis-

are being investigated by government agents. The fact that persons known of corps of secret service agents, work-

and several of them have started

It has been easy in the past to commit coal land frauds in the North because no one paid any attention to the operations of the coal agents in Alaska. The Alaska Peninsula and
Islands have been the principal fields
of operation for the coal land thieves
and it is claimed by the men familiar with Alaskan conditions that hundreds of thousands of dollars have been stolen
from the government.

Perjury will be a feature of the gov-

GOVERNMENT AGENTS BUSY.

BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES:

SEATTLE, May 9.—(Exclusive Dispatch.) The Alaska Coal Land Frauds
are being investigated by government agents. The fact that persons known to be without means in Seattle, have bought up coal lands in the far north, has attracted attention. One of corps of secret service agents, working here on behalf of the government, and several of them have started toward Alaska to inquire into conditions.

It has been easy in the past to commit coal land frauds in the North because no one paid any attention to the operations of the coal agents in
Alaska. The Alaska Peninsula and
Islands have been the principal fields
of operation for the coal land thieves
and it is claimed by the men familiar
with Alaskan conditions that hundreds of thousands of dollars have been stolen
from the government.

Perjury will be a feature of the government prosecution, and suits are to be brought to compel the return of public lands to the government so soon as evidence can be gathered.

HAYWOOD'S TRIAL IS BEGUN IN BOISE CITY.

Culprit Accused as Accessory to Murder of Gov. Steunenberg Sits Stolidly All Day—No Juror Is Accepted When Court Adjourned.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.)

FACTS INVOLVED IN TRIAL.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

BOISE, May 9.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Accused—William D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer Western Federation of Miners. Charge—Murder, first degree.

Victim—Former Gov. Frank Steunenberg, who was blown to pieces by a bomb while entering his home at Caldwell on the night of December 30, 1905.

Time likely to secure jury—Ten days to three weeks.

Number of witnesses subpoenaed for prosecution—Thirty-four; by defense, sixty-four.

What State will try to prove—That Haywood, with other officers of the federation, was a member of the inner circle which had for its object rule by terrorizing in the mining regions; that he planned many murders, and that he and his associates paid Harry Orchard to kill Steunenberg in revenge for his activity against the federation.

What the defense will try to prove—That the arrest of Haywood and his associates was a part of a conspiracy on the part of the mine owners and Pinkerton detective agency to get the officers of the union out of the way; as then the union could be broken up; that Orchard is being paid a large sum to perjure himself to swear away the life of the accused and thus save his own.

Probable cost of the trial—$500,000.

Probable duration—Three to four months.

BOISE (Idaho) May 9.—William D. Haywood, first of the alleged participants in the avenging conspiracy by which it is asserted the assassination of Frank Steunenberg was plotted, was placed under trial for his life today. Counsel for State and prisoner entered at once in a hasty hearing upon the examination of prospective jurors and kept steadily at the task for five hours. No juror was finally accepted, but substantial progress was made and the indications at the close of the session were that a jury could be obtained by the end of next week.

The opening day of the trial went through to its conclusion in quiet hardness, unmarked by unusual incident. The earliest news came from the striking miners was the entire absence of words or demonstration in any form. At no time, morning or afternoon, was the courtroom more than half filled and the streets forming the Courthouse square contained not a single listener.

The case was halted shortly before 5 o'clock by the exhaustion of the jury panel, and an adjournment was taken until Monday morning. Meantime, the miners will summon a special verdict of 100 men to sit when men under examination, but not yet finally accepted or rejected, were called up, and will be closely guarded.

HAYWOOD IS STOLID.

Haywood was brought to the courtroom sharp at 10 o'clock in the morning. He found his family in a line of chairs to the right of his seat, and in front were all of his counsel. He devoted more attention to his youngest daughter than to anyone else, and throughout the day took practically no part in the selection of jurors. Many men in similar jeopardy, as a rule make some show of their prospective jurors and frequently express their personal preferences. But Haywood seems content to leave the matter to his lawyers entirely. Haywood gave no sign of any feeling or emotion, but was quiet throughout the day. Mrs. Haywood and the older daughter stood the ordeal of appearance in court very well, but the younger child cried after the examination of the talesmen began. Mrs. Haywood and her children did not attend the afternoon session.

The questioning of the defense took a much wider range than that of the State, and its most striking feature dealt with the possible effect on the minds and attitudes of juries of the letter of the President calling Haywood and his associates "undesirable citizens," the speeches in defense of Secretary Taft, the message of Gov. Gooding to the Legislature of Idaho, the speech in Boise of Senator Hayburn, and the action of the Idaho Legislature in passing a resolution and appropriating money for the prosecution of the three prisoners.

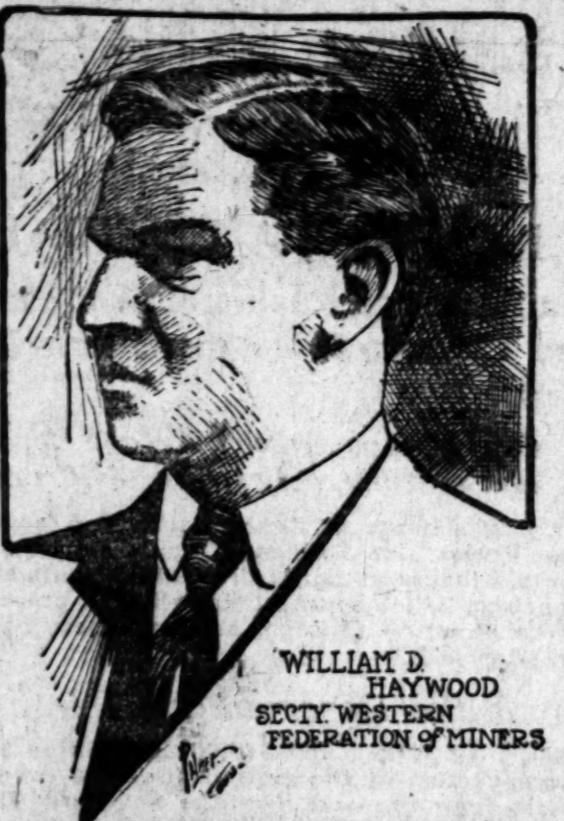

Mr. Richardson, who conducted the examination of the talesmen, was also particular to ascertain their attitude toward Socialists and members of labor organizations, and whether they could give them a fair trial. He was also anxious to know if they had any previous record of fraternal relations or political affiliation with the counsel for the State, and connection with detective agencies, or experience in the pursuit of criminals or were members of the Mine Owners' Association. Richardson also asked if they had contributed to any fund for the prosecution of the prisoners. If they were members of the Citizen's Alliance, if they remembered the old labor trouble in Idaho, and if they had taken sides in the labor disputes at any time.

A remarkable feature of this examination was that all the talesmen questioned by the attorneys swore that they had not been influenced by the letter of President Roosevelt or the speeches of other officials of the national or State governments, and a majority of them said they were Republicans.

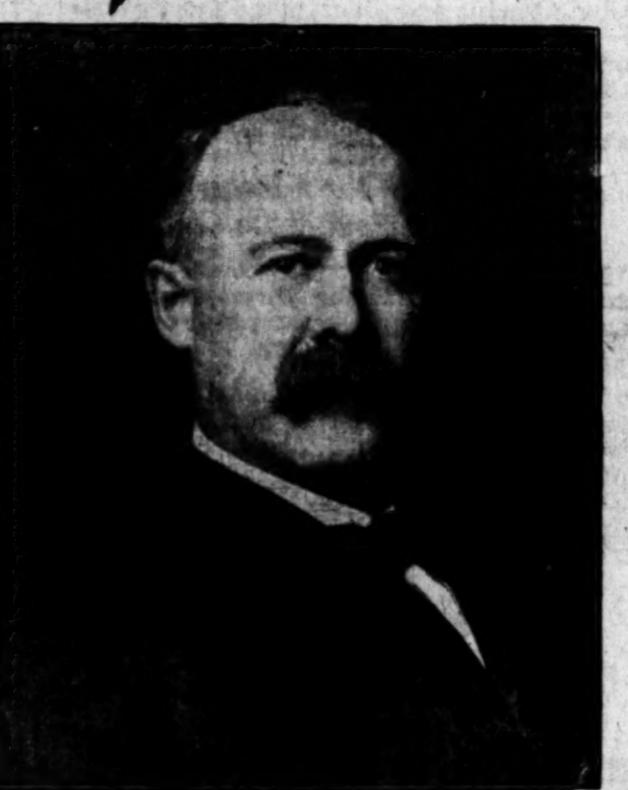

STATE SEEKS FAIR JURY.

The chief concern of the counsel for the State in the examination of talesmen, as indicated by their questions, was their attitude as to circumstantial evidence, the absence of the accused from the State when the crime was committed, the effect of the manner in which the prisoner and his companion had been freed from Idaho and the view of the talesmen as to the death penalty for murder in the first degree, and union labor. They also questioned each talesman as to his acquaintance with the murdered Governor, or enmity. Their examination brought out the fact that certain

"Yes, I held an appointment at the Soldiers' Home for a while, but before the defense undertook its examination of the proposed jurors."

"You were discharged?"

"Then I take it you and Gov. Steunenberg had a difference?"

"We are ready," counsel for both sides replied in unison.

Next followed the excuse of four members of the regular jury panel to sit, leaving seven men, leaving but twenty-three men to be examined at this time.

Twelve names were then called and all of the empty jury seats were filled and the examination of any of the talesmen was begun.

A. L. Ewing, a gray-bearded carpenter, who sat in the foreman's chair, was the first of the panel questioned by Mr. Darrow, who had been retained by the attorney for the defense.

"Are you a member of the Carpenters' Union?" asked Mr. Hawley.

"No sir."

"Have you heard this case discussed by any one who pretended to know the facts?"

"No sir."

"Were you acquainted with Gov. Steunenberg?"

"Yes sir."

dropped temporarily, and Mr. Hawley passed on to the second man, when he had an appointment that would go through the panel of twelve, but before the defense undertook its examination of the proposed jurors.

The second man, James L. Ayres, said he had never been married and had lived in this county since 1875. He came to this State from Tennessee, and had a passing acquaintance with Gov. Steunenberg.

"Do you read any of the Socialist papers published in this country?" asked Mr. Hawley.

"I do not, but they have been sent to me in the past few months."

Ayres said some of the papers came to him by mail while others were thrown into his yard.

"How long has that condition existed?"

"We object to that," interrupted Mr. Darrow of the defense.

"Darwin, we are ready. It is our turn."

Ewing said he had read of the case pretty thoroughly in all the papers and had talked with his own son regarding the case and the procedure.

"Do you mean by that?" asked Mr. Hawley quickly.

"I mean," said the proposed juror, "that we talked about the length of time it would take to try the case."

"Have you informed on express an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused?"

"I don't think I ever have."

"Have you any opinion now?"

"I don't think I have, although it sounds like a wooden man to say so."

"Have you any prejudice against circumstantial evidence?"

"No, except that I would be very careful in arriving at a decision on such evidence."

"Would the fact that the defendant was not in the State at the time of the killing affect your decision?"

"The defense," said Mr. Hawley, "repeated the challenge and Mr. Richardson of Haywood's counsel took up the examination of the talesmen. He drew from Ayres the statement that if it were shown that the accused had killed but it would take considerable evidence to change his present opinion. The examination of Ewing was here

DIRTY PUGILISTIC LINEN WASHED IN PUBLIC THROUGH CONFESSIONS OF THE PARTICIPANTS.

Manager McCarey, Tom Burns and Jack O'Brien Incriminate Each Other in Duplicating Trusting Fight Fans.

LOS ANGELES fight fans and visitors who were here in attendance on the Burns-O'Brien fight Wednesday night were duped by a rank counterfeit through machinations of Jack O'Brien or Manager Tom McCarey and Tommy Burns, with others possibly incriminated.

McCarey and Burns confessed yesterday that they had entered into an agreement with Jack O'Brien whereby the Philadelphia was to come out victory in the battle. They specifically agreed to pay him $30,000 for his action in order to draw O'Brien into the ring and thereby put him in a position where they could force him to fight on the square. They allege that they had no intentions of carrying out the agreement with O'Brien, and that they proposed to show him up in his true light, and have done so.

Jack O'Brien, on the other hand, alleges that not only was this fight arranged to be a fake, but that there were other plots for the future, and that the former battle between him and Burns was so arranged originally that it would be a draw, in order to secure a return match. He justifies his position by declaring that he was forced into the deal after he had gone into the match for fear that he could not pull out, and that, anyhow, it was not an uncommon practice for such frame-ups to be pulled off.

McCarey and Burns allege that they are justified in their actions by not disappointing the fans in pulling off the match and by declaring all bets off.

O'Brien says that bets were declared off because bettors on O'Brien were frightened when it was known that Burns had agreed to double-cross O'Brien and might win, as they had bet heavily on Jack.

The exposé was forced by the attitude the public took in demanding that the men who had been declared off and because the fight was a poor one.

O'Brien claims that it was planned that he should win by a decision, after fighting with Burns, and originally it was specified that Burns was to have been knocked out in the eleventh round. Burns admits that he agreed to knock him out in the eleventh round, but says he did not intend to keep his agreement.

GREAT SENSATION.

The confessions made by the conspirators in the plot have caused a great sensation, not only in pugilistic circles, but among the people at large. It is declared that the night game will be suspended and the Los Angeles City Council will soon have to pass an ordinance taking away from the Pacific Athletic Club the right to hold fights.

The Shriners and fans in general who paid to witness the battle in the arena Wednesday night have been robbed of their money, because the participants in the match did not receive a satisfactory exhibition, and it has been known beforehand that trouble was afoot. There is little doubt but that the fight is not to be a "square" battle, but a "written" exhibition.

Burns tried to fight, but O'Brien when he found himself double-crossed did not fight his way out, but took the easy way to himself in the circumstances, and therefore was on the defensive.

McCarey is censured, if his story is true, for having been the first to learn of the time he first learned of the alleged proposal by O'Brien to fake. Instead he carried out the negotiations to cover the expense of the fight and took a 50% chance of success by figuring he could force O'Brien to fight a square battle.

If O'Brien's story is true, the sooner the public got wind of the blackness, the better. The public demands a thorough scouring.

GREAT SCANDAL.

The exposé, taken at whatever angle, is the most surprising pugilistic scandal ever sprung. In other words, no one ever caught "dead to rights" Burns confessing to faking, but none corroborated his statement. The San Francisco scandals implicated many, but the exposé occurred long after events took place.

In this case three parties confess to being parties to a deal which, at best, could not have resulted otherwise than by giving some one the worst of it. Manager McCarey's position is that he could not have been duped, although he (McCarey) stood ready at all times to pull off the match under the $30,000-a-fight condition.

"Stings," is the word passed down the line of those who paid admission. Nevertheless it is agreed to pull off the fight. No fight, however, was given, but that O'Brien made his alleged proposal, it was abandoned, although he (McCarey) stood ready at all times to pull off the match under the $30,000-a-fight condition.

Both Jack Sullivan and Hugo Kelly are good fighters and none of the parties interested in the match would care to pull off a fake, such as contemplated, because the temper of the crowd would not stand for it. There is no telling what might follow.

Referee Eytion said yesterday that he knew nothing about the affair, as he could not have served at any price. It is not known who will referee tonight, although Eytion is the club's chosen official.

MCCAREY-BURNS STORY.

The history of the transaction, as told by Tom McCarey and Tommy Burns, substantially is as follows:

Some time in December, when the return match between Jack O'Brien and Tommy Burns was talked of, Jack O'Brien called at the home of Tommy Burns and made the proposition to "draw" the bout. He argued with Tommy that he loss would not mean much to Burns, who was at the beginning of his career, and had little experience anyhow, while for him (Jack) to be defeated would put him to the bad, whereas if he won it would give him the opportunity to make a lot of money.

Burns was to receive the large end of the purse, $18,000, for laying down, and Burns was to receive the small end of the purse and the fame attending his "victory."

Burns did not agree to the arrangement the first time, and O'Brien returned and again went over the proposition. Jack told Burns frankly that he had no such thing in his bones of Tommy's superior weight, strength and hitting powers. He told Burns flatly that he would not enter the ring without the second time these arrangements. The proposition was made in the presence of Burns' wife, and the men were ordered to advance.

O'Brien was so stupefied at the betas Burns says they can testify to the truth of his statements.

Burns says he realized that the only way to get O'Brien into the ring was to agree to these arrangements, as he had no mind to meet O'Brien in the ring, and, apparently, to agree to the proposition, and then, when he got O'Brien into the ring, declare he would not stand for the arrangement and demand that he fight to the best of his ability.

O'Brien readjusted his battle-plan, and, from the way the fight turned out, it seems that he elected to stay the limit as he could, for he made arrangements to win the bout by saving a knockout, but losing the decision. Several times Billy Nolan called to him to mix it up occasionally, and O'Brien agreed to be arranged that his hands should be fought with clean breaks. O'Brien agreed to this, believing that he could win the decision, and he did, but he lost.

Revere gave him $20,000 in a bid against Rhyolite promoters, who carried out their arrangements with McCarey's outfit.

Shortly after this O'Brien approached McCarey and asked if he could not go higher on the purse. Burns told him no, not a dollar. O'Brien then asked McCarey if he could withdraw his bid if Rhyolite came across with $30,000, and as an inducement offered McCarey half of the additional amount if he would withdraw his bid. McCarey would consider the proposition. Presumably Rhyolite did not come across with such an offer. The matter was not further discussed seriously.

McCarey did not know until O'Brien came across with $30,000, and the two men met again in the ring. O'Brien persisted in remaining in San Francisco and made a statement to the press that McCarey had agreed to withdraw his bid for $30,000.

McCarey was advised not to give O'Brien, but considered it best to give the money as agreed.

O'BRIEN-NOLAN SIDE.

Jack O'Brien, in his room at the Ansel Hotel, told his side of the story, with Nolan listening.

The first time Burns and O'Brien met in November, it had been agreed that the fight should result in a draw.

It was left to the fighters to make it a draw, and Burns promised to allow O'Brien to win, provided that he did not care to take chances.

Therefore, Burns's plan to knock out the Philadelphia was foiled, though all of the plans were to McCarey's advantage.

McCarey then gave Nolan a check for the money due O'Brien. The total receipts were $21,500. O'Brien's share was $10,000, and Nolan's check came for $10,000, having been paid O'Brien for retaining expenses. The referee gave him $2000.

McCarey was advised not to give O'Brien, but considered it best to give the money as agreed.

Jack O'Brien was worried about the match, McCarey proposed a "frame-up." McCarey, up to this time, knew nothing about the proposition, having been unable to learn of it, and agreed to stand by him. O'Brien proposed that he and Burns arrange that the latter "lay down" and allow O'Brien to win, promising at the same time that he would leave the betting absolutely alone.

McCarey says he refused absolutely to consider the proposition at that time, and think the matter over.

He asked McCarey to sound Burns, without intimating that previous to this he had agreed to do so. He then continued the match, and McCarey agreed to do so, saying he would not fight unless some arrangements was fixed up.

Driven to desperation, with the big money hanging over his head, Burns agreed to the proposed arrangements made to pull off the fight. McCarey says he did last was induced to approach Burns with the idea.

After long consultation, Burns and McCarey agreed seemingly to accept O'Brien's proposition, seeing that the latter would not fight otherwise. But Burns was still not satisfied.

McCarey laid the plans and Burns agreed to follow them, giving up his previous position.

Then came the smash on the nose, not ten or twelve rounds off O'Brien's helplessness and on the defensive. After Burns had been hit and blazed there for a fearful trade against them and blazed thereof for pulling him into the dirty business. He said that there were many more rounds to come, and that at this time he was beginning to make a hard business out of the game, he could not afford to have suspicion thrown on him.

Nolan told McCarey to call everything off; to do something to the fighters, one of whom became less figuratively. McCarey and Nolan would not agree, and Nolan said he would wash his hands of the whole affair. O'Brien could not be stopped from fighting, and Nolan then, as shown in the first four rounds.

HAYWOOD'S TRIAL.

process, Wilson insisted upon the challenge and it was sustained. As Ayres stepped out of the box the defense noted an exception.

The defense was called. He said he was a grocer and had discussed the case with his lawyer thoroughly with his customers. He had discussed also the method of winning the case with his friend Wilson, who had former and expressed a decided opinion, based on what he had read in the newspaper. If the evidence were different from what he had read, he thought he could change his opinion. He was not ready without hearing the evidence, to decide the fate of the prisoner. Breckinridge was called, who by the defense, was present. The defense joined in the challenge this time and the talesman was promptly excused.

"I am glad we are on something," said Mr. Ayres, laughing heartily.

Capt. J. E. Yates, president of the Boise Bank of Commerce, was next examined.

Capt. Yates was blunt and monomaniac in his answers. He said he had read about the case and did discuss it. What he had heard, however, would not influence his verdict. He had no bias against the prisoner.

Mr. Hawley passed Capt. Yates without a challenge and went on with the examination of Harry Van Orsdel, who sat in chair Number 4.

Baker said he was a native of Illinois and had lived and farmed in Kansas and Iowa. He was once a lumberman and afterward a life insurance agent. He said he knew Gov. Steunenberg slightly, but did not know the defendant. He had no bias against the prisoner, but believed he was unqualified. The talesman was vouchsafed to the prosecution for cause, but was questioned further by the defense, before they adjourned. Baker made the third witness examined for cause out of the first five examined. The other two, however, had not been finally questioned by the defense.

SENATOR BORAH HELPS.

George W. Baker, a butcher, in chair Number 4, when questioned said he knew Gov. Steunenberg only by sight. Senator Borah conducted the examination of Walker.

Walker said he had formed an opinion to a certain extent that would remove him, and he said he was opposed to capital punishment where circumstantial evidence entered into the matter. He was then challenged and reserved the right to question the proposed juror later. Senator Borah withdrew the State's challenge temporarily.

George H. McIntyre, a farmer residing in the county for ten years, was being questioned when the luncheon recess was over. Notwithstanding the fact that the twelve men in the jury box had not been sworn, Judge Wood ordered that they be kept together.

Before proceeding with the examination of Talmage, McIntyre, at both the afternoon session, counseled for the defense and agreed to the examination of W. A. Simpson, who occupied seat No. 7, on account of illness in his family.

Mr. McIntyre said he was born in Canada, but had been a citizen of the United States for many years. Representing to Senator Borah, he declined to express an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant, in fact, he had no fixed opinion, no prejudice or bias in the matter whatever. McIntyre said he was not of any reason why he should not render a fair and impartial verdict, and if sworn as a juror he said he was prepared to render judgment according to the law and the evidence presented to him. "I am not asked to pass on an entirely satisfactory examination, but he was passed for the time being by the defense."

Senator Borah next took up the examination of Sylvester Gaunt, who has resided in this county for twenty-seven years. Mr. Rudge declared he had neither formed nor expressed a definite opinion. The examination of this talesman was brief, and apparently satisfactory to the defense.

Sylvester Gaunt, a coal, wood and feed dealer, the ninth man in the jury box, was quick to point out his lack of opinion which would require the strongest kind of evidence to remove. Both sides joined in a challenge for Gaunt, and Gaunt stepped down.

Orrie Cole, a mining engineer, who has resided in this county for twenty-seven years. Mr. Rudge declared he had neither formed nor expressed a definite opinion. The examination of this talesman was brief, and apparently satisfactory to the defense.

Samuel F. Russell, a lawyer, had no fixed opinion, and had no prejudice or feeling against the accused.

William Van Orsdel, called to replace one of the excused jurors, gave little attention to the newspaper accounts of the tragedy. Mr. Van Orsdel's examination seemed satisfactory to the prosecution, and to the defense, on the basis that he had said he had no opinion either for or against the prisoner.

Frank Foster, a brick manufacturer, was excused on a challenge by the defense.

Paul A. Cowger, a life insurance agent, was called to replace Foster as No. 5, and was excused, upon saying he had a fixed opinion.

William H. Cathcart, next called, said he had conscientious scruples against capital punishment, and was excused.

J. L. Waggoner, the panelman who has been charged was approached by a number of men, and was asked to have an influence on his feelings in the matter of the accused miners, was examined. Yost was arrested and held under bond in a holding cell in the courthouse on the 1st floor. Waggoner appeared before Mr. Hawley. Waggoner said today that he had no feeling against the prisoner, and knew of no reason why he should not serve.

"We submit the challenge as not well taken," said Mr. Hawley for the defense.

"We insist," retorted Haywood's counsel.

Samuel F. Russell, a lawyer, had no fixed opinion, and had no prejudice or feeling against the accused.

At Redondo over $2,000,000 has already been expended in great and substantial improvements. The beautiful "Redondo Villa Tract B" is on the Camino Real (King's Highway) boulevard connecting Redondo with Los Angeles. We have just bought this beautiful tract for $151,000, and believing in the principle that it pays to let our customers make a profit, hence we have decided on this grand d profit-sharing plan. We will make a profit and all our purchasers are guaranteed a profit of 25 per cent. within one year, as per our written agreement.

MR. H. E. HUNTINGTON IS EXPENDING OVER A MILLION DOLLARS A ROUND REDONDO IN SUBSTANTIAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Go down to Redondo and see for yourself. At Jefferson street and Grand avenue see the immense stacks of heavy steel rails for the double-tracking of the present two electric lines of the Los Angeles and Redondo Railway Company. The rails are arriving daily. Dirt is now flying. Better buy now. Then there's the Los Angeles & Pacific Railway Co.'s electric line to Redondo, the broad-gauging of which will soon occur. And in addition to the above three electric lines now running to Redondo is the great Santa Fe steam railroad. With four lines of transportation it would seem as if same would be sufficient, but surveyors are in the field laying out the shortest line of all to connect Los Angeles with its choice new suburb—Redondo. Mr. Huntington is now building at Redondo the largest electric power house on the Pacific Coast, to cost $1,250,000, as fast as men and money can do it. Go down and look at the mammoth cement smokestack.

A suburban electric railroad is now nearing completion at Redondo. The grand three-story business block of Mr. W. M. Garland at Redondo is just finished. Follow successful men like Mr. Huntington and Mr. Garland—they know that Redondo is a substantial and safe place to invest in. Buy anywhere around Redondo and you are sure to make large profits. Three commercial wharves. A safe harbor by twenty years' practical test. Redondo is permanent and has just begun to grow. Then again, referring to successful men, we notice that the following men have bought to the north of Redondo:

Mr. Edwin Chambers, the far-sighted General Freight Agent of the Santa Fe; Mr. George H. Peck, the successful banker of San Pedro; Mr. John J. Byrne, the capable General Passenger Agent of the Santa Fe, and Dan Murphy, the millionaire oil operator of Los Angeles. A word to the wise is sufficient. BUY.

HARRIMAN RAILROADS TO NEW BOND ISSUE.

Politics of Union and Southern Pacific Put On Quarterly Basis Dividends Declared — Wall Looks Askance at Latest Move.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.

May 8.—Directors of the two companies today voted to stand the stockholders instead of a semi-annual dividend of 2% per cent. of the outstanding stock.

The quarterly dividend of $1,111,182,000 standing on the books at $98,273,000; $70,623,000 par value; other stocks charged on the books at $35,000.

Statements submitted to the directors of the Southern Pacific today show that the probable earnings of that company for the year ending June 30, 1903, will be approximately $67,600,000, after charges including depreciation of $25,768,000; from this there will be a dividend of 7½ per cent. on par value of $1,111,182,000, and dividends of 5 per cent. on common stock, $9,827,000, leaving a surplus after paying dividends of $13,166,000.

This unfavorable verdict was a source of disappointment to the large financial interests. When the battles of the two bond manufacturers were over for the day and the financial district had registered its lack of enthusiasm, Mr. Harriman left his office in the afternoon, a deeply chagrined man.

He referred rather resentfully to the time last summer when he first announced a 10-per-cent. dividend on United Pacific stock.

"It looks," he said, "as if I would be the biggest man in New York. I thought I had got the greatest and greatest expected to be commanded and praised.

"Now I am the most unpopular man down here, and I am being cursed and reviled all over the street. I have handed out a lemon instead of a melon."

The head of the Union Pacific and Pacific Mail said that he hoped optimistic reports of the $111,000,000 would be devoted toward paying off the floating debts of the two companies.

There are no more stock or bond issues to be sold for a long time," he said.

"In fact, this will be all the financing required for a long time from this time forward," he said.

"No understanding has been arranged for the bond issue, but that step may be taken if any of the bonds remain unsold.

"I know of a man who would be glad to take all the bonds offered," he said.

Mr. Harriman painted a gloomy picture of the prosperity of his two railroads, and said that he did not understand why roads which were seeking further loans.

Other than the above the company has no debts.

There has been no issue of capital obligations.

At present the floating debt of the Southern Pacific is $32,300,000, of which $27,000,000 is due to the Union Pacific.

The Central Pacific Railroad Company has paid three installments of notes issued to the United States government, reducing the amount of that company to $1,000,000.

No additional dividends are expected for the next few months.

"In addition to the company's investment in securities, steamships, and other assets, the total investment up to $24,000,000, deducting from May 31, 1902, to the extent of 15 per cent. of their holdings, common and preferred, both having the right to be paid, which will amount to $3,600,000, the company will have to pay $1,000,000.

It is estimated that it will not return.

TWO WOMEN CLAIM HIM.

Death of "Soldier of Fortune" Brings Out Sentimental Episodes in His Career.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES)—NEW YORK, May 9.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A remarkable story of a dual love and a possible clash between two women has been disclosed. A little was revealed today, when Miss Mary Dillon of Louisville, Ky., arrived in New York to claim the remains of Henry Ronald Douglas MacIver, whose picturesque and thrilling career came to a sudden end on Monday last in a boarding-house.

MacIver, after a soldier of fortune had established himself in the boarding-house, he chanced to meet his "second" affinity, as he called her, whose name is Miss Mildred V. Berry, clerk in a tailoring establishment on the lower west side. When seen today, Miss Berry admitted that he had pleased for her heart and hand.

Miss Dillon said today that she and MacIver had been married in New York on Friday next. She also said MacIver had made a will in her favor. MacIver had often mentioned the mysterious will without which his Kentucky finances was so anxious when she reached New York.

TWO ATTEMPT SUICIDE.

Despondent Man Cuts His Throat and Woman Takes Poison—Doctors Save Both.

V. Peterson, who occupies a room at No. 502 Wall street, tried to commit suicide in a dramatic manner just before daylight yesterday morning. He left his room and walked to the high bluff on First and Hill streets overlooking the city. With a razor he slashed his throat from ear to ear. The wound was sewed up and the despondent man was sent to the County Hospital.

Workmen passing saw a man wailing in his blood. They notified the police, and Peterson was hurried to the Receiving Hospital, where the surgeons worked over him for an hour. The wound was sewed up and the despondent man was sent to the County Hospital.

As a reason for desiring to take his life, Peterson said he could not bear to see everybody enjoying themselves when he was out of work and had no money. He went to the high bluff, he said, to take a look at the beautiful city. Peterson is unmarried and aged about 45 years.

WOMAN ALSO FAILS.

Just two blocks from the home of Peterson lives Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Tripp. At about the same hour that Peterson was contemplating suicide, Tripp was becoming hysterical, desirous to take her life. She also chose to end her life dramatically.

Taking a cup of carbolic acid in his hand, she told her husband from sleep, and before he could stop her she drank the poison.

Tripp at once hurried for assistance, and the woman was removed to the County Hospital, where antides were applied. The wife was restored and is believed to be out of danger. She is also about 45 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Tripp came to Los Angeles a few months ago. The husband has worked as a pattern maker in the leather trade.

The woman is Mrs. Reynolds, who has often threatened suicide.

She is the widow of a county sheriff.

Hermit Republic of the Andes.

BOLIVIA, ITS PHYSICAL CONDITIONS, ITS INDUSTRIES, ITS PRODUCTS AND ITS PROBLEMS.

By Francis E. Clark, LL.D.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.)

A PAZ (Bolivia) March 12.—In some respects the most interesting republic in South America is Bolivia, though, at the same time, it is one of the poorest and decidedly the most inaccessible.

Far more remote from modern civilization than Korea, the so-called Hermit Nation, which has many fine seaports, Bolivia, after the war with Chile in 1879, lost her little strip of seacoast, which, at the best, was so remote from her centers of population and wealth as to be of little service to her.

Her roads to the outside world is over a single-track railroad line running from Lake Titicaca through Peru for 300 miles over lofty Andean passes, 14,500 feet above the sea; or by a still longer and more difficult narrow-gauge road from Oruro on the table lands to Antofagasta on the Chilean shore. These two ports of entry, however, both in alien territory, are probably the worst seaports in the world, the surf often being so high that it is impossible for days to land or embark either of them.

Two or three passenger trains a week, consisting of two cars each, and a few short freight trains every week, are the only means of communication with the outside world. All the mail, however, comes from the mere outskirts of Bolivia, whose rich center has never yet been pierced by sail or carriage road.

NOT A HERMIT BY CHOICE. Unlike Korea, however, Bolivia is not a hermit nation by choice. Her isolation has been thrust upon her by nature and by the disastrous Chilean War, and now her people are doing all they can to remedy this remoteness and to bring her rich plateaus and richer mountains nearer to the rest of the world, and to make the most of natural resources.

To picture Bolivia to oneself, imagine the State of Utah quadrupled in size, raised to twice its present height above the sea, and much of it spread over a vast plateau, surrounded by mountains that rise to a height of 20,000 feet, while an occasional peak pierces the sky at an altitude of 22,000 or even 23,000 feet. Imagine the Great Lakes of North America, and increased in size a dozen times, into a lake half as large as Ontario, and you have Lake Titicaca. Imagine Salt Lake City dropped down into an immense crater, 12,000 feet below the rim of the surrounding plain, and you have an idea of La Paz, the seat of government.

Bolivia has many things in her favor, her immense territory, for one thing. No nation can become truly great that has not room for expansion, and Bolivia has room to expand, and to spare. The third largest in size, tropical, subtropical, temperate, arctic and arctic zones, are found, and everything, from rubber, coffee, sugar cane, to the coca plantains and vegetables, will thrive. Several of these vegetable and mineral products are so interesting for various reasons that they deserve some paragraphs of their own.

ROOM FOR EXPANSION. Bolivia has not room for expansion, for she is hemmed in on all sides by the Andes, and the mountains are so high that they are almost as high as the Alps.

But Bolivia is a country of vast resources, as well as of magnificent distances—resources, the very surface of which have hardly been scratched as yet. Its different climates at varying altitudes make every agricultural product possible, while its mountains contain every known mineral.

From an elevation a thousand feet above the sea in the Amazonian plateau of Titicaca, 13,000 feet above the sea in the Andes, and at these heights, and at these varying heights, tropical, subtropical, temperate, arctic and arctic zones, are found, and everything, from rubber, coffee, sugar cane, to the coca plantains and vegetables, will thrive. Several of these vegetable and mineral products are so interesting for various reasons that they deserve some paragraphs of their own.

Coca, for instance, the plant from whose leaves cocaine is extracted, is the most valuable product of Bolivia. In no other country does it grow so abundantly, and at these heights, and at these varying heights, tropical, subtropical, temperate, arctic and arctic zones, are found, and everything, from rubber, coffee, sugar cane, to the coca plantains and vegetables, will thrive. Several of these vegetable and mineral products are so interesting for various reasons that they deserve some paragraphs of their own.

As used by the Indians, it seems to be a harmless stimulant, for they simply chew the dried leaves, and extract the alkaloid, cocaine, from them.

But cocaine is a powerful drug, and when used unthinkingly as a drug, is deplorable enough, and it is a question whether the Bolivian coca plantations are more of a curse or a blessing to mankind.

QUININE INDUSTRY. Chinchona bark, from which comes quinine, the drug of the drug store, is another important product of Bolivia.

the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, this mountain yielded in taxes to the Spanish crown three billions and a quarter of dollars, and as Spain declined, so did the output of quinine.

Today, however, the miners in the Andes mine in the country, and to every one who has taken a two-grain quinine pill they are interested.

They grow upon rugged mountain peaks, and are sold in the country, and are shipped to Europe, America, and Australia. They are sold in the country, and are shipped to Europe, America, and Australia.

As a matter of fact, the tin copper and tin are the chief products of Bolivia.

There are large quantities of tin, and of such a high grade that they have decided to export it.

Sugar, coffee, of an excellent quality, rice, corn, beans, and other grains are raised in Bolivia.

There are large quantities of cotton, and of such a high grade that they have decided to export it.

This attractive and gentle creature is in evidence. Look out for the young ones, and you are likely to find them scampers about.

They are said to be the most intelligent animals in the world, and thousands of them are kept in the Andes.

Red Fezes Dot Shore Sands and Bound on Rolling Deep.—Final Night Parade

was given by the crew that is kept in attendance upon the bathers.

Horst Scott, a strong swimmer, went out into the surf breakers, and swam over one, with exhaustion. When he cried for help, many in the crowd believed it meant a possible drowning, and hundreds flocked to the shore and stood on the edge of the water-line, peering into the tossing waves for a sight of the supposed helpless man.

From his lookout at the bathehouse, George Newton dashed into the surf, after signalling the lifeboat, which was tossing on the swells beyond the surf line.

The swimmer headed for Scott, darting ahead with a swift, overhand stroke, while the lifeguard put in to assist him, also dived to the sturdy arms of Ernest Howson and Carl Witt.

The life-guard reached Scott and supported him until water had been pumped up both men.

No realiste was the exhibition that a burst of applause broke from the spectators, as the boat grounded on the sand, while the crew descended.

The heat wave that overcame our audience and overthrew their craft and after the capsule showed how easy it was for accomplished swimmers to right the boat and bail out.

NOT ON THE PROGRAMME.

One incident not among the scheduled events caused a little excitement for a few moments.

A car ran on an upright engine, being used on the beach not far from where the crowd was located, suddenly blew off with a loud report and instantly the air was filled with the smell of gasoline.

The engine immediately opened the safety valve, and in a few minutes the excitement was over, but for an instant the women seemed to think they were in danger from an explosion.

The Shriners seemed to enjoy the Little Pier.

They called back and forth, inviting to the "island" who stood outside their little booths, urging the ushers to take a chance at this or that "sure thing" game.

Candy and popcorn men did a regular business, and the only substitute for non-alcoholic water was found in a great demand. The drug stores up town were filled all day with thirsty ones.

All day the Long Beach Shriners kept open house at their headquarters at Del Mar, which was handsomely decorated with flags, Shriner emblems and bunting.

After 4 o'clock many of the robes began to return to Los Angeles, although hundreds remained to enjoy the grand ball in the evening.

All around the city the spirit of Long Beach's hospitality and gave a profound salam to their generous hosts in spirit if not in openly expressed nature.

JOY OVERFLOWS ON ISLAND TRIP.

WONDERS CHARM VISITORS WHO GO TO CATALINA.

Eight hundred members of the visiting Arab patrols spent the day at Catalina yesterday. It took three boats to transport the host of brilliantly costumed nobles to the magic-isle, but everybody got there and had a good time.

The faithful left the Pacific Electric depot at 8 o'clock in the morning, and 1000 nobles were soon gathered within the portals of the great building. The waiting-room was crowded a half-hour before the cars left, and when the gates were thrown open for admittance to the cars, a grand rush occurred that made anything that ever happened in local football circles look like a funeral march. Many ladies accompanied the nobles.

The country this side of Compton, thickly dotted with houses and gardens, and the broad fields beyond, green and mustard-decked, offered pleasing and exciting views to the travellors as they fairly flew to the seashore. When they passed Wilmington, and saw the bustle of inner harbor and the tangle of spars and docks and small and big craft, there was a thrill which many of the visitors had never felt before, for it was their first sight of the ocean.

Then they whizzed through the lumber yards, and the crunching brakes and quickly slackened speed told them that they were near the docks.

Over the gangplank the nobles filed in gay procession, and realized that they were actually afloat on the wild, noisy water. The officer on the bridge pulled the signal "Island" group, churred the water aft, and soon the boat was under way with a long, bubbling line behind her wake. Other boats followed with more vigor.

Out past Deadman's Island with its historic associations, then on the southward course passing the nick in the coast, the nobles were soon ashore where a small car carried to the water's edge the hides as described in Diana's "Two Years Before the Mast" and on over the rippled sea sped the Shriners and their ladies.

Now and then a flying fish described

NEW TURN IN BADGE LACK.

In Lieu of Other Souvenirs, Shriners Trade Silver Spoons for Coveted Tokens.

So scarce have official badges of the various temples become at this time that those collecting have hit upon a unique scheme to add to their collections. Quite a number of Shriners have gone to the jewelry stores and bought up a quantity of solid silver and gold-lined souvenir spoons.

These spoons have proven too great a temptation to be resisted by most of the young ladies who have collected badges, and they are now trading off their badges for the spoons. Sometimes as high as two and three solid silver spoons have been given for one badge. A few rare badges command fancy trades.

a pretty curve many feet above the water line while the glint of the sunlight on its scales was noted by the eye of many a novice. The mainland mistily appeared below the horizon, the island grew bigger and clearer dead ahead.

After a while Sugar Loaf could be seen acting as sentinel for the Bay of San Pedro, and the course of time the city might be viewed from the deck of the supposing craft.

A gentle swing of the steamer, a signal or two to the engine room, some deft turns and twists of the hawsers, and then with opening of the gang plank, all was ready for the island visitors to disembark.

There was a great scattering when the travelers got ashore. The glass bottom boats and the rickety carts to the marine grottoes formed a trail which drew forth many expressions of wonder. Looking into the greenish depths where fish of various kinds, sizes and colors were moving and where the tiny fish were swimming, the spectators were shown to excellent advantage the astonished beholders could not find the words to tell what they felt.

Then, too, there was the aquarium with its thousand wonders of collected marine life, the walks and trails leading to the higher points beyond the town.

ward Broadway, so that while they could not all get on Broadway, that thoroughfare was packed to suffocation.

ALL GOOD NATURED.

Everybody was good natured, and all the trifling annoyances occasioned by "ridiculous" things in the hands of the revelers, who accepted in a matter-of-course spirit, and nobody seemed to take offense.

It has been the oft-expressed wonder of thousands of visitors in the city that such drunken revelry can be controlled by almost no interference on the part of the police, and that the greatest rarity on the streets was a drunken man.

The most remarkable scene of the evening was on South Broadway, at the dispersing of the crowd. Automobiles, street cars, horsemen, vehicles of all kinds, men, women and children, foot filled with noise, rushed to buildings all going mad in a wild rush. Reaching First street, the mass spread out like a fan, shooting north, east and west, and it was all accomplished without a hitch.

Thousands of people saw the last night parade for the first time, having come in from surrounding towns, and the order of the day was to have a good time.

The Angelino choked wrathfully, but held his peace. His beautiful city was being enjoyed by the visitors, and the floral parade, plus minus, one trip serve to see the whole show. On the other hand, thousands of city people who witnessed the electric parade in the dark, lighted lamps late last night to rest up for the floral parade; and, in the main, it was an entire new crowd that looked on and applauded the beautiful spectacle last night.

SPIRIT CATCHING.

The spirit of revelry is so contagious that we are this thing to go on indefinitely, lawyers, doctors and even preachers might be caught in the maelstrom of fun. This thought is suggested by some of the staid and serious members of the community.

There was a great gathering last night, tickling ladies in the face with feathers and playing other innocent pranks. And the girls—they were in it with the most laughing unrestrained.

"Come with me to the Palomina," said the shrill voice of a girl who manufacture anything here or not," softly purred the Angelino.

The precaution was unnecessary, as the disturbance coming from the First street end was easily quelled.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Attorneys for the Los Angeles-Pacific Railway have informed the Board of Public Works that the company will apply for third-rail franchises on East Hill and West Sixteenth streets.

Charges against Clerk McGill of the health department were filed yesterday by the Health Board with the Civil Service Commission.

A peculiar case was taken into the Superior Court yesterday by Attorneys Brooks & Wills, counsel for Frank Eastman, involving the question of whether someone who would be a breach of law elsewhere is such in a man's own domicile.

The plaintiff in the injunction suit brought by the Catalina Island Company against the Meteor Boat Company rested their case yesterday, and on Monday the defendants will present testimony in their fight for a free harbor at Avalon.

Butts brought by the county against Justices Pierce and Stephens, to compel them to pay the amount of fees collected into the county treasury, were filed yesterday.

Fifteen persons arrested themselves during the parade Wednesday were bailed without favor by the police, and a number of them were arrested and spent a night in jail. Most of them were fined in Police Court yesterday. Others were released with a warning.

W. S. Vooranger, who used a spear on a horse in the electrical parade to make the animal restive, was fined $5 for cruelty to animals yesterday.

AT THE CITY HALL.

WILL ASK FOR THIRD RAIL.

NEW FRANCHISES ON HILL AND SIXTEENTH STREETS.

Standard Gauge for Los Angeles-Pacific Lines Inside City Limits—Pacific Electric to Apply for Permit to Cross Los Angeles Street Overhead at Sixth.

The Los Angeles-Pacific Railway has released the tension in the City Attorney's office and in the Board of Public Works by agreeing to apply formally for a third-rail franchise on South Hill and West Sixteenth streets. A month ago the attorneys for the railway notified the Board of Public Works that the company expected to lay a third rail on these streets for the purpose of standardizing the gauge of its West Sixteenth street line.

The attorneys asserted that an act passed by the last State Legislature confers on the company the privilege to operate over lines of another road, by contract, and to use either wide or narrow gauge.

The question raised was not one of great moment on Hill street, as no electric line runs on the hill and the rail there; but it opened the wider question of a suburban line coming into the heart of the city over the tracks of a local road without first securing the consent of the city.

The Board of Public Works referred the communication from the railroad company to the City Attorney. Mr. Hewitt advised an opinion to the effect that the new franchise did not give the railway the right to permit the Los Angeles-Pacific company to lay its third rail without encroaching on the city.

The company, however, from the company's constriction on the City Hall to be the preliminary movement in a legal battle to test the question of the rights of the suburban lines in the city.

Two weeks ago the Board of Public Works received assurances from the company that it has no desire to enter into litigation with the city over the right to lay a third rail on the suburban railway lines. To illustrate: By making a contract with the Los Angeles Railway Company a suburban line can lay a third rail across the line of the University car from the west city limits to Garvanza and operate its cars right through the heart of the city during the life of the University line franchise.

The Pacific Electric company has also agreed to ask the Council for a franchise for elevating its tracks across Los Angeles street at the east entrance to the Huntington building, and coming down on the side for a surface line across Los Angeles street, between Sixth and Seventh streets, and asked for the privilege of the Board of Public Works or building department to grant it.

City Attorney Hewitt gave an opinion that this would require a new franchise. The attorneys for the company accepted this opinion and said they would wait for the result of Monday's meeting of the Council. The City Attorney has ruled that this is not a franchise which can be advertised for sale; the Council can consider the privilege by a direct grant.

HEALTH BOARD ACTS.

MCGILL COMPLAINT FILED. Charges were filed yesterday with the Board of Civil Service Commissioners by the Board of Health asking for the removal from office of Clerk McGill of the health department.

The complaint is signed by the assistant Health Officer, Dr. Harris, who stipulates that he is acting under the directions of the Board of Health.

The case against McGill is unique in that the charges emanate from the Health Board direct and not from the health department. He is charged with incompetency, dishonesty, misconduct and insubordination.

Detailed charges are as follows:

"His incompetency consists in that he is not qualified to be a bookkeeper and that he work as a bookkeeper and has been for many years inaccurate and unsatisfactory; that he is not qualified either mentally to keep an account of his activities and other records of the health department."

"His delinquency consists in inattention to the duties devolving upon him."

"His conduct consists in having attempted to prevent the passage of an ordinance, the passage of which was requested by the Board of Health April 25, 1907, and wherein it was provided that:

"The ordinance be amended so as to read: 'Eight milk inspectors instead of seven, including one and one assistant milk inspector, and one assistant milk inspector, shall be appointed by the Board of Health instead of one man who shall act as secretary of the Board of Health and one assistant clerk.'

Members of the accused clerks assert that the changes are a part of the political movement to secure McGill's dismissal. They say the extent of his misconduct consists in telling a member of the Council that he did not know what he was doing.

The Health Board is best for the department. They say the action of the Health Board in seeking his dismissal on such trivial complaints is an attempt to discredit the ancient injunction "those shall not bind the mouth of the ox that treadeth corn."

Members of the Health Board have recommended that for the removal of the old system of government.

Complaints intended to affect the case and trial before the Civil Service Commission may produce some sensational testimony. Health Commissioner Moore has so far made no statement against McGill. It is regarded as a secret agent of state politics that the charges are signed by Dr. Garrison in place of Dr. Powers, the health officer.

NO LIGHT BILLS.

LIBRARY ILLUMINATION. City Auditor Muster has returned to the Library Board, without his typewriter, from the Edison Electric Company for the Public Library. He expresses the opinion that the Edison Company is required under its franchise to furnish illumination free to the library the same as to the municipality.

At the time the library rooms were opened on Hill street there was a sharp competition between the lighting companies for the privilege of furnishing illumination. If the Auditor is sustained in his contention, the Edison Company will begin the taking of testimony.

The complainants are signed by J. D. Fredericks, District Attorney, and Hartley Shaw, chief deputy.

JUSTICES SUED.

FOR FEES COLLECTED. Two suits against Justices of the peace of the Superior Court of Los Angeles, brought by the county of Los Angeles, were filed yesterday in the Superior Court.

The complainants, charging H. A. Pearce and A. L. Stephens, respectively, with refusing to pay into the County Treasury the amounts collected between March 18 and April 20, 1907, allege information that Justice Stephens has collected $96,510 in that period, and Justice Pearce $150.

The suit is to recover the sum of these amounts into the County Treasury.

The action brought by authority of the Board of Supervisors of the Legislatives, in effect March 18, putting the two justices, as well as the two new ones, on salary of $10 per month, and requiring them to pay into the County Treasury.

The complainants are signed by Dr. Powers, the health officer.

SHRINER FESTIVITIES.

the laws of California. Membership in the association is open to all Southern Calif. Masons who are Shriner members upon the payment of an annual fee of $1. The officers of the corporation are J. F. Hughes, president; Mrs. C. B. Foster, vice-president; Mrs. H. H. R. D. Sevier, Edward Strasberg, F. X. Pfaffinger, James W. Long, Niles Pease, Sherman Washburn, Mrs. W. J. Rankin and Mrs. W. H. Routsazian, directors.

The idea of having a Masonic home in Southern California was conceived in 1899. The long trip necessary in order to reach the California Home in the north made it advisable to provide some haven nearer home where Masons in trouble could be cared for. The result of the movement was the organization of the association.

The corporation was formed with little or no money in the treasury and it was a long task raising the necessary funds to purchase the suitable property. The first fair held for the purpose netted but $150 and the project appeared to rest upon a shaky footing. Another fair held a little later, resulted in the acquisition of some $16,000. This money was all put out at interest and held until the full $20,000 needed had been secured.

The next problem which faced the promoters was the question of a suitable location. After looking around they secured the old East San Gabriel Hotel and at once started to put it into condition.

In October, 1900, the home was formally opened. Under the rules governing the institution, all Masons of Southern California entitled to relief were to pay $15 per month, and the sum of $15 per month for their keep. As the resources of the home are increased, it is hoped to start an endowment fund which will enable the association to take care of Masons in with little or no expense to their lodges.

OLDEST NOBLE.

Lively Veteran of Eighty-one Years Who Crossed the Continent.

The older of the visiting Shriners, and one of the most active, crossed the whole continent to get here. He is R. C. Pingree of Lewiston, Me., aged 81, and as full of vivacity as the gayest youngster in the herd. Mr. Pingree was for many years engaged in the lumber business, but is now retired. He is enjoying Southern California's climate and looks the San Pedro lumber wharves talk particularly good to him.

DAUGHTERS OF ISIS SEEK RECOGNITION.

OFFICIAL recognition for the Daughters of Isis by the Imperial Council of the Mystic Shrine has the motive of a movement which has been launched this week in Los Angeles, and which it is hoped may be brought to an issue at the next annual meeting in St. Paul.

At present the Imperial Council does not take cognizance of the Daughters of Isis, a branch of the Mystic Shrine. The local organization was started at first as an individual one for one of the eastern temples, but it met with such popularity and proved of such service in advancing sociability in Masonic circles that it soon spread to various temples throughout the United States.

At the present time each Daughter of Isis Shrine is independent, controlled by the temple within the same territory. There is no central government, nor are there State organizations. The plan of campaign, however, is to urge Shriners here assembled to organize a national home for the Daughters of Isis as an auxiliary to each temple where they do not exist, and then to present a memorial to the next Imperial Council asking that the western auxiliary give some sort of official recognition, with a provision for State organizations.

There has been some discussion among prominent members of the Mystic Shrine as to the advisability of the Imperial Council giving recognition to any suborganization, no matter what its character, and the idea was advanced that this would tend to divide the ranks. In face of the recommendation of Imperial Potentate Alayah P. Clayton made to the council session just closed has been quoted to uphold this point.

The Imperial Potentate said in his annual address:

"I most heartily recommend that no association be formed inside of any temple or by members of the order that shall in any way detract from the interest and well-being of the temple."

Just how sweeping this recommendation would be when it came to considering the Daughters of Isis is a question.

Ball at Long Beach.

One hundred and twenty couples, Shriners, for the greater part, took part in the grand march at the Auditorium at Long Beach last night. The final event of the day was the Shrine ball.

The hall was elaborately decorated for the occasion and there were hundreds of spectators.

At the big hall, Mayor Downs and Mrs. Downs led the grand march.

ALLAH CALLS HIS CHILDREN.

Allah calls his scattered children and the "faithful" hear the cry, And make the pilgrimage to Mecca ere 'tis time for them to die; For is it not so written in the Koran—blessed book?

Which never turbaned Arab—praised be Allah!—e'er forsook? Far across the scorching desert with its leagues of burning sand, O'er rivers wide and mountains high, unto the chosen land Where the Prophet's spirit hovers with approving smile, serene The caravans of faithful on their camels tall and lean.

Brave the sandstorms of the desert, facing ever to the East,

For they hope to enter heaven and with hours there to feast.

And they say of all the journeys that the faithful make with zest This same pilgrimage to Mecca is on many counts a test.

Then the hearts of true believers do with holy fervor glow As they face the dread strocco that from off the desert blow,

Ere they reach the cool oasis and the palm trees' grateful shade And slake their thirst at fountains where the Prophet oft has prayed.

Now, while we are of the faithful, we are of a different race

And our Mecca—thanks to Heaven—is in a very different place;

For years and years we've hungered and have thirsted long and sore For a glimpse of that fair region on the broad Pacific's shore;

At any rate, regardless of the reconstruction of Imperial Potentate Clayton, there are to be lost the names of prominent Shriners, representing some of the most prominent temples, who will work to spread the propaganda of the Daughters of Isis as an auxiliary to the Shrine.

The Daughters of Isis in Los Angeles have played no small part in the plans for the week's hospitality. The local organization has almost 500 members, belonging to one of the many floors in the United States.

At the present time, there are 200 novices who were initiated Wednesday night.

Potentate Motte H. Flint is its official.

Mrs. Fred Ellyn Lang is its potentiess. Mrs. Fred Evelyn Lang is the chairman of the Executives' Committee; Mrs. Mayme Goodrich is the head of the Welfare Committee; Mrs. Mead, a goddess of the chart, is supported by Court Maids Mrs. Charles Logan and Mrs. M. H. Flint.

Every day since the Shriners first began to arrive delegations from the various American Daughters of Isis have awaited them at the Masonic Temple and have given personal greeting to every lady visitor. There have been many individual entertainments by local shriners for visitors.

On Saturday morning the Daughters of Isis, and on Saturday afternoon they will receive all visitors at the Masonic Home in South San Gabriel. They will also take part in the grand ball to be given at Venice tonight.

We have crossed the lofty mountains with their robes of dazzling snow To the green and smiling valleys where the Zem-Zephys blow.

Ah, the hours, ah, the hours, of this earthly Paradise!

We have all reached one conclusion—that each hour is a prize;

And we humbly thank the Prophet for the sights we still may see In this golden land of promise out beside the western sea.

DR. WILLIAMS'
PINK PILLS
FOR ANÆMIA

Thin Blood, Dizzy Spells, Palpitating Heart and Smothering Sensations Indicate a Condition for Which this Remedy is a Specific.

An anæmic condition, that is, a state of health in which the blood is apparently turning to water and every organ of the body is suffering for lack of nourishment, can be met only by a remedy that will increase the quantity and richness of the blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood and they have been curing anæmia for a generation. A recent case is that of Miss Nellie M. Danforth, of 66 South Broadway, Akron, Ohio. It was not an unusually severe case but was a characteristic one.

The approach of Miss Danforth's trouble was very gradual. She felt symptoms of it for a year and although she was under a physician's care for some time the treatment did not afford her any relief. She says:

"I had weak spells when I felt as though I was going to faint and my heart would palpitate so that I was almost smothered. I had no color, even in my lips and my ears were as white as wax. Everyone said my blood was turning to water."

"Whenever I would rise from a chair I would have to hold on to it to steady myself as everything would turn dark before my eyes and all I could see were flashes of light, like shooting stars.

"I had to crawl to bed at night when a friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I got a box. I began to feel a little better and continued taking the pills until I had fully recovered. I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to a number of my friends."

A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," containing fuller information will be freely given.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.
